
People often wonder how to download high-definition movies like "Where The Wild Things Are" or "2012" for free, but their confusion is understandable. The answer is that you will need a Blu-ray player to access these movies, but it's easy enough to get one. Simply go to the official retailers of your favorite movies and find the Blu-ray player of your choice. There are three big names in this market: Sony, Panasonic, and Samsung. Just make sure you get one with HDMI output; avoid buying only blu ray drive if it has standard connection because DVD players cannot support HD movie output which can result in poor quality. Once you have the player of your choice you can simply install the recommended software, which will allow you to play Blu-ray movies on your computer. However, if that is not enough for you, keep reading because this article will help you learn how to get free HD movies. YOU HAVE TO BE REALLY CREATIVE....AND WILLING TO DO A LOT OF WORK. BUT IF YOU LIKE FREE MATERIAL, AND GIVING IT AWAY, THEN THIS MAY BE FOR YOU! The first method is getting ripped DVD video discs at a local store with a large selection of them to choose from or online by visiting freecodedomain or freespeechdvd.net. This is a free service to rip free dvd movies. Many of these websites are mostly spam, but you will find the occasional high quality movie. The best way to know if something is worth downloading or not is by reading reviews. After all, using this method might take a lot of time, but the material available can be very rewarding. Another option for free HD movies involves YouTube videos that are encoded in HQ format (high quality). All you have to do is search for them or use Clipfish's map for this purpose. You can also watch movies on Facebook, where people tend to upload these videos as well. Here's what you should watch out for when you're downloading free HD movies: Make sure they are encoded in h.264 format, or else it will be useless to you. Also make sure there are no watermarks on the videos; if there are, try to get rid of them using video editing software. Finally, once you've downloaded your HQ video, you will need to encode it into the right format that plays on your device. This step is not strictly necessary but ensures that you will enjoy the movie in high definition. You can use tools like Handbrake to do this for you automatically! The best thing about this method is that there is no limit to how much content you can get. The quantity and quality of what you can get is virtually limitless. If you're not satisfied with the info above, here's another option for downloading free HD videos: If you live in a country that has a lot of web-sites that provide free HD movies (such as India), you can also do this. Simply go to one of these websites and watch movies like "2012" or "Where The Wild Things Are" for free! This will give your computer or laptop a bad taste because it will be filled with illegal software; however, the amount of the movies you will get is far higher than with other methods.
